My dear Margaret,

Just a note to let you know that you are in my thoughts and prayers.

Another great light has gone out in this community. Your dear husband enriched all those with whom he was associated. I should like to share with you a lovely thought that often sustains me during times of stress: "Count only the bright hours." Indeed, it is consoling to know that in your treasure-chest of memory, you will have many "bright hours" spent with dear Charles with which to find

Dear Margaret,

We were very sorry to hear this week of Charles's death, and I just wanted to write to let you know that our thoughts are with you. John, Graham + Charlie. It must be an awful shock for you all, and I feel great sympathy for your loss. Charles will be sadly missed by many. he was a great personality; and we will remember him fondly from the Méribel chalet holiday days.

I will never forget him leading the party of stragglers through that snowstorm which caught us unawares on the way back from Val Thorens! And I know my father will miss him terribly on the golf course.

He had a very full and purposeful life in which you can be proud to have played such a vital role.

Dear John,

Here from over, my thoughts & prayers are with you now. Having lost my dear Mama last summer, I know what you are feeling. It is wonderful what the mind & body can do under stress, with that flow of adrenalin keeping us buoyant. Your Dad would have been so proud of you & Alexander at the funeral. It was a beautiful service & so true to his character.

Now it is all over, and my advice to you, John - & to Graham, & Charlie - is this; take time to mourn your Dad. Don't let anyone try to persuade you to "get on with your lives," however kind their intentions are. There is plenty of time for that. Your Dad lived a full & productive life, one which is worthy of respect & contemplation. Cherish all the moments you had with him & have no regrets.

Trust me, boys if you do this, then when you finally do turn that last page & close that cherished book, you will do so knowing that you savoured every thought, word & sentence of its author. It will bring you great satisfaction to know that you took the time, in-between all the paperwork & formalities, to truly say 'Good-bye'.

Bless you, John - & take good care of yourself.

only rarely in the past years I remember most vividly our first meeting in London in 1956 - I was very much on the fringe of that Bermuda group. I think it was Liz Zuill who introduced me to Charles + Carole and I was so impressed by his kindness and warmth. I always felt that I kept in touch through my mother who was very fond of both of you - the one couple she was happy to be with at those Bata meetings.

David had told me of Charles' mysterious illness and I had been hoping to hear of his recovery. What a dreadful time you must have had and I just hope that you can take comfort in the thought that Charles is now at peace. I believe your boys and their families are near by and share your grief and you are a comfort and support to each other. I know how much

Mrs Charles T. M. Collis,

I just learned from Mr. Kusaato of Fidelity Japan that your husband Charles passed away. I could not hear any detail or cause of his death, and I could hardly believe that he would die so young because he always appeared to us as an extreamely well built stout gentleman full of energy. It must have been a great shock to you. Please accept my heartfelt empathy.

My late husband Hisashi who died eight years ago always talked about you. I vividly remember about our meetings with your family in Switzerland and Scotland when your three sons, all of them students then, were with you. Now I belive all your sons must have graduated from universities and are active in law society or other field. After your husband passed away, I hope all your sons are tenderly looking after you and help you overcome the great sorrow.

Sincerely

Dear Margaret

How sad I was to hear recently from Molly that Charles had died. She also sent me a press cutting from the Royal Gazette – what a wonderful tribute it was!

When Malcolm died I received so many letters from people who had loved and admired him – and they were a great comfort and pleasure to me, but, in the end, nothing can make up for your own personal feelings of utter loss and devastation – wondering how on earth you can go on without your friend, support and sharer in every part of your life.

I couldn't have managed without the love and support of my friends and of my three remarkable children. I also had, as you do too, the most wonderful memories of our life together. And I've talked about these a lot, to all who loved him too – it helps.

I only met Charles once and liked him immensely. And after reading this glowing obituary, I realise he was liked and
